Kitty Umiña is a latinx non-binary model, and mixed media artist born and raised in Queens, New York. Kitty's love for arts stemmed from their early days when all they wanted to do was draw cats, even when they were told to focus on other things.

They love to sew, having learned and graduated from a fashion design school, making clothes for themselves and their friends along with what they're known for most; their rhinestone art. Kitty dives into their art with the intentions of embracing their inner child and curating their own fantasies with otherworldly inspirations.

Kitty is infatuated with the idea of wearable art. They take pride in creating a new version of themselves with every work of art that they pour themselves into.
